THIS MATTER is before the Court on Petitioner's Motion to Vacate, Set Aside, or Correct Sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 [Doc. 1], and in light of Petitioner's Supplemental Memorandum [Doc. 10], in which Petitioner concedes that his claim is time-barred. Petitioner is represented by Jared Paul Martin of the Federal Defenders of Western North Carolina.

BACKGROUND AND DISCUSSION

On April 30, 1996, Petitioner pled guilty in this Court to conspiracy to commit bank robbery (Count One); taking money by force, violence, and intimidation, and use (Count Two); and carrying a firearm during and in relation to a crime of violence (Count Three), in case number 1:96-cr-13.

[Crim. Case No. 1:96-cr-00013-MR-1, Doc. 18: Plea Agreement]. On April 30, 1996, Petitioner also pled guilty to possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, in case number 1:96-cr-16. [Crim. Case No. 1:96-cr-00016-MR-1, Doc. 6: Plea Agreement]. The presentence report (“PSR”) found that Petitioner had two qualifying prior convictions that triggered the career offender enhancement under U.S.S.G. § 4B1.2, namely, two 1992 North Carolina convictions for breaking, entering and larceny. [Crim. Case No. 1:96-cr-00013-MR-1, Doc. 75 at ¶¶ 42, 56, 58].

Based on the career-offender enhancement, Petitioner faced a guidelines range of 262 to 327 months plus a consecutive sentence of ten years pursuant to the conviction under 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1). [Id. at ¶ 110]. On January 31, 1997, this Court imposed a sentence of 60 months on Count One in case number 96-CR-16; 60 months on Count One in case number 96-CR-13, a term of 120 months on Count Two in case number 96-CR-13, to run consecutive to Count One in case number 96-CR-13; and a term of 120 months on Count Five in case number 96-CR 13, consecutive to Counts One and Two in case number 96-CR-13, for a total of 300 months’ imprisonment. [Crim. Case No. 1:96-cr-00013-MR-1, Doc. 35: Judgment; Crim. Case No. 1:96-cr-00016-MR-1, Doc. 11: Judgment].

On June 26, 2015, the Supreme Court held in Johnson v. United States that the residual clause of the Armed Career Criminal Act (“ACCA”) — which covered any offense that “otherwise involves conduct that presents a serious potential risk of physical injury to another” — is “unconstitutionally vague.” 135 S. Ct. 2551, 2557 (2015). Based on that holding, the Court concluded that “imposing an increased sentence under the residual clause . . . violates the Constitution’s guarantee of due process.” Id. at 2563. On April 18, 2016, the Supreme Court held in Welch v. United States, 136 S. Ct. 1257, 1265 (2016), that Johnson is retroactively applicable on collateral review to claims that the defendant was improperly sentenced as an armed career criminal.

On around June 21, 2016, Petitioner filed the underlying motion to vacate through counsel, raising a Johnson claim. [Doc. 1]. In the motion to vacate, Petitioner argued that, under Johnson, his prior convictions for breaking and entering and larceny no longer qualify as career-offender predicates under Johnson.

On September 2, 2016, the Court placed Petitioner’s motion in abeyance pending the outcome of Beckles v. United States, Supreme Court No. 15-8455, in which the petitioner argued that his career-offender sentence was erroneously enhanced by an unconstitutionally vague residual clause of U.S.S.G. § 4B1.2. [Doc. 4]. On March 6, 2017, the Supreme Court held in Beckles that “the advisory Guidelines are not subject to vagueness challenges.” 137 S. Ct. 886, 890 (2017). The Court reasoned that, because the guidelines are not mandatory, due process is not implicated. Beckles did not, however, resolve the question of whether Johnson’s constitutional holding applies retroactively to those defendants, like Petitioner, who were sentenced before United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005), when the Sentencing Guidelines were mandatory rather than advisory. Because this very issue was pending in the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, the Government filed a motion to stay pending a decision in United States v. Brown, No. 16-7065, which this Court granted on May 9, 2017. [Docs. 6, 7].

The Fourth Circuit decided Brown on August 21, 2017, holding that Johnson did not apply to cases in which defendants were sentenced under the pre-Booker Sentencing Guidelines. United States v. Brown, 868 F.3d 297 (4th Cir. 2017). The Fourth Circuit denied a motion for rehearing en banc, United States v. Brown, 891 F.3d 115 (4th Cir. 2018), and the Supreme Court denied certiorari, Brown v. United States, No. 17-9276, 2018 WL 2877128 (U.S. Oct. 15, 2018).

On November 3, 2018, Petitioner filed a supplemental memorandum in light of the Supreme Court’s denial of certiorari in Brown. In the supplemental memorandum, Petitioner states that the parties agree that, based on the Supreme Court's denial of certiorari, Petitioner's claim is foreclosed by Brown as untimely. As Petitioner concedes that his petition is untimely, Petitioner's motion will be denied and dismissed.

Finally, the Court notes that Petitioner seeks an order from the Court granting a certificate of appealability. Petitioner essentially contends that reasonable jurists would disagree over the constitutionality of the Court's denial of a motion to vacate as untimely in which a petitioner raises a Johnson claim where the petitioner was sentenced pre-Booker. The Court recognizes that Chief Judge Gregory wrote a dissent in the Fourth Circuit's Brown decision, arguing that the petitioner there should be entitled to relief under Johnson and after Beckles. The Court also recognizes that Justice Sotomayor wrote a dissent in the Supreme Court's decision denying the petition for certiorari in Brown, in which Justice Ginsburg joined. Nevertheless, the Court of Appeals' decision in Brown is binding. Whether this Court or other reasonable jurists may differ on whether Brown was correctly decided, it cannot reasonably be disputed that the holding of Brown is binding on this Court and on subsequent panels of the Court of Appeals.

As Brown is now settled law in this circuit, the Court declines to grant a certificate of appealability in this action. The Court finds that the Petitioner has not made a substantial showing of a denial of a constitutional right. See generally 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2); see also Miller-El v. Cockrell, 537 U.S. 322, 336-38 (2003) (in order to satisfy § 2253(c), a “petitioner must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court’s assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong”) (citing Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484-85 (2000)). Petitioner has failed to demonstrate both that this Court’s dispositive procedural rulings are debatable, and that the Motion to Vacate states a debatable claim of the denial of a constitutional right. Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 484-85 (2000). As a result, the Court declines to issue a certificate of appealability. See Rule 11(a), Rules Governing Section 2255 Proceedings for the United States District Courts, 28 U.S.C. § 2255.

ORDER

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that Petitioner’s Section 2255 Motion to Vacate, Set Aside, or Correct Sentence [Doc. 1] is DENIED and DISMISSED with prejudice.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Court declines to issue a certificate of appealability.

Signed: November 20, 2018

IT IS SO ORDERED.
